Over The Last Week
As of April 16, 2021

Quick Take

- + Our tactical model remains 100% invested, as the reward component remains higher than the risk component. The risk, our measure of expected volatility, has continued to decline as the economy begins to re-open.
- = The long-term model has weakened slightly, due to a lack of positive market breadth during the past week. While this is a short-term concern, the long-term model is still very positive and market breadth has been very positive during the past few months.
- + The intermediate-term model is back near neutral after improving during the past week. Optimism in the option's market has started to subside after displaying extremely positive sentiment in recent weeks.

A Closer Look at Our Tactical Positioning Targets

Each day, Meeder analyzes and ranks over 70 different factors from our short, intermediate, and long-term models. The dynamic statistical model incorporates factors covering macroeconomic, fundamental, trends and technical analysis to estimate the potential reward and marketplace risk of the equity markets. The Meeder Spectrum, Muirfield, Balanced, Moderate Allocation, and Conservative Allocation funds utilize this strategy for the Defensive Equity portion of their portfolios. The Defensive Equity Strategy guides the allocation of each fund's equity sleeve and the actual proportion of equity investments in any fund will vary depending on the investment objectives of the fund.

Understanding the Defensive Equity Snapshot

The vertical axis of the grid combines the scores of our long-, intermediate-, and short-term models to arrive at the reward value for the stock market. The horizontal axis represents the model's internal measure of stock market risk. The reward value is divided by marketplace risk to arrive at our recommended percentage of Net Equity Exposure.
