Over The Last Week
As of May 14, 2021

Quick Take

- + The long-term model declined but remains positive. High equity valuations are being offset by a strong macroeconomic environment, continuation of positive domestic equity trends, and improving momentum from a majority of U.S. industries.
- = Long-term model valuation factors remain negative and slightly worsened over the past week. Some of the more positive components of the long-term model are narrow credit spreads and the steepening yield curve.
- The intermediate-term model score declined over the past week, driven primarily by increased investment volume into equity ETFs. Our measure of interest rate sentiment is also detracting from the model, as expectations of higher interest rates increased.

Overall Model Output

A Closer Look at Our Tactical Positioning Targets

Each day, Meeder analyzes and ranks over 70 different factors from our short, intermediate, and long-term models. The dynamic statistical model incorporates factors covering macroeconomic, fundamental, trends and technical analysis to estimate the potential reward and marketplace risk of the equity markets. The Meeder Spectrum, Muirfield, Balanced, Moderate Allocation, and Conservative Allocation funds utilize this strategy for the Defensive Equity portion of their portfolios. The Defensive Equity Strategy guides the allocation of each fund's equity sleeve and the actual proportion of equity investments in any fund will vary depending on the investment objectives of the fund.

Understanding the Defensive Equity Snapshot

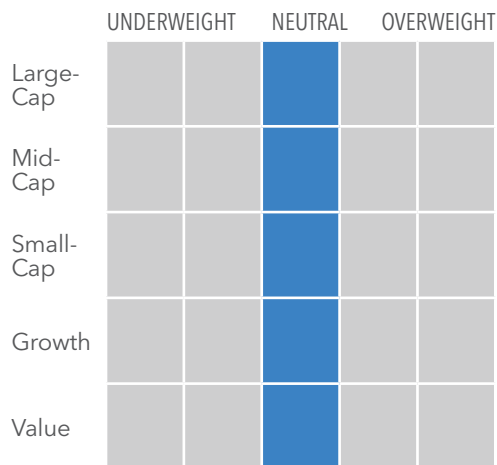

The vertical axis of the grid combines the scores of our long-, intermediate-, and short-term models to arrive at the reward value for the stock market. The horizontal axis represents the model's internal measure of stock market risk. The reward value is divided by marketplace risk to arrive at our recommended percentage of Net Equity Exposure.
